Communication Arts and Debate

Students will learn the art of oral communication in a fun activity-focused environment. Students learning outcomes include the ability to organize thoughts and ideas and present them to an audience. Confidence: students will gain poise and self-assurance as their skills grow and this confidence will transition into other academic areas as well as the students’ personal lives. Communication skills: the ACLA learning environment provides students the opportunity to evaluate peers in a shared learning experience where students help each other grow. This session student will construct informative speeches and take on the role of teacher while the develop engaging presentations similar to Tedtalks.

Confident Lions

Learn the three C’s: confidence, calm, and (self)care! Each week skill sets will be introduced, and students will build a toolbox for navigating life’s opportunities, challenges, and relationships through games, activities, crafts and more. This will be a fun and inspiring environment.
